

Mission, Vision, and Core Values

Committed to Recovery

Mission

To meet the special and changing needs of New Yorkers experiencing critical life problems with substance abuse and mental illness. Using a wide-ranging network of health and human services, we help people empower their lives.

Vision

To help New Yorkers at risk to fully benefit from the social and economic life in their communities. We aspire to provide unsurpassed behavioral health and social services to transform lives, especially those with chemical dependency and mental illness at their core. It is our dream to serve with the passion and professionalism that generates only enduring outcomes, rewarding recovery and lasting hope.

Core Values

guide our work and performance as we deliver on our LESC mission.

- We respect the dignity and merit of each person we serve.
- We believe each person to be inherently good.
- We believe that recovery and wellness is possible.
- We honor our responsibility to our mission and funding source by managing and operating effectively and efficiently.
- We add value to our community, city and state
